Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. Claims 1-21 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Haber et al (5,136,647) in view of Freeman et al (6,006,227).

Regarding independent claims 1 and 17, and dependent claims 2-16 and 18-21, refer to Haber's abstract, in which he discloses timestamping digital documents and providing a tamper-proof time seal establishing an author's claim to the temporal existence of the document. Haber further discloses that the document, once reduced to a number via a one way hash function, is transmitted to an outside agency (claim 7), where the current time is added to form a receipt which is certified by the agency. It is noted that Haber fails to teach "building a database of document identifiers and associated certificate identifiers". However, refer to Freeman's abstract, figures 1-4, and columns 2-3, in which he discloses storing documents in one or more chronologically ordered streams. Freeman also discloses, The documents can include text, pictures, animations, software programs or any other type of data. In figure 1 (70) and figure 3, Freeman discloses a summarize function for summarizing the substream chosen in figure 2. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to combine Haber and Freeman because it would facilitate
